COURSE IN MUSIC AND ART FOR SENIOR HIGH SCHOOL STUDENTS

A course for gifted senior high school students, devoted to the understanding of principal periods in art and music history from 1600 to the current time, is now being offered at The Cleveland Museum of Art. The study begins June 23 and meets every Tuesday through Friday from 1:30 to 3:30 p.m. for six weeks. Those eligible to enter are students whose parents are Museum members or whose interest is substantial enough to qualify them for the available scholarships. There is a studio fee of $5.00.

Instructors are Francis Grant, Director of the Youth Orchestra at the Cleveland Institute of Music, and Robert Woide, Assistant Supervisor of Art for the Cleveland Public Schools.

The course is designed to enlighten the student about interrelationships existing between the visual and musical arts and to help him be more skilled in criticism and evaluation of the masterpieces in both areas. Content, composition and variations of theme will be interpreted and explored in lectures, class discussions, actual study of original works of art and music, and in studio workshops where students will be able to work with art materials and analyze music compositions.

There is a limit of 22 students in this year's class. The course was given for the first time last year.

For further registration information please call the Museum's Education Department, GA 1-7340. Registration should be completed by June 10.
